

I am requesting that the FCC not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Before the Indiana privacy law was enacted I would receive 6 to 10 telemarketer calls a week, which has now been reduced to almost zero.

Since I retire for the night early my only option before was to unplug the phone, and risk missing a emergency call or a call out to work or subscribe to a service thru the phone company to block out unwanted calls. I feel that I should not have to absorb that added cost to have unwanted calls blocked.

In ending it has been nice the last 6 months not getting calls waking me up at 7:30-8:00p.m. solicating funds, selling windows, newspapers, credit card insurance, ect.

Thank you for your time and consideration.
